Since its inception in 1998, canon has sought to create more of a learning community at the Graduate Faculty, particularly among the students. The magazine is meant to be an interdisciplinary forum for student scholarship and perspectives on subjects both in and out of academia. The magazine proudly remains free from being entrenched in a particular academic discipline and uniquely aims to represent the intellectual passion of the student body of the Graduate Faculty as a whole. canon also reserves the right to refuse or abridge submissions. Articles, essays, and artwork should be mailed to canon, c/o Office of Academic Affairs, New School University, 65 5th Avenue, New York, NY 10003, or submitted to the canon website: www.canonmagazine.org.

Opinions printed in canon are not necessarily those of the editors or of New School University.
