

ABOUT THE CONTRIBUTORS

The GFSS is the Graduate Faculty Student Senate. They choose to remain bio-less this issue.

Aaron Jaffe is a 2nd year MA student of Philosophy. His studies focus on the history of philosophy, especially on political and linguistic thought.

Carlos Figueroa is a Ph.D. Candidate for Political Science. He is currently researching the political, institutional and ideological development of U.S. Puerto Rico Constitutional Status issue from 1898 to 1952 and is also a Board member of the United Nations Association, NJ Division (Co-chair, Human Rights Committee). He is also a life-long NY Mets fan!

Steve Newman is an MA candidate in the Psychology Department. He is old to the world but new to the New School.

Andra Nita is a second-year MA candidate in Liberal Studies. She has spent the last two years reading and writing about contemporary art and culture. In school since the age of eight, she is very glad to have finally found something she likes . . . at twenty five.

Damien Lennon is a second-year MA student of Liberal Studies. He is the author of numerous unsuccessful works, of which a significant portion has since become cheap wallpaper. He shoots olive oil cans to deal with stress.

Aaron Knaull, a second-year MA student of Liberal Studies, is the artist formally known as Amanda. She uses a unique symbol to express her name, but she cannot do so on the version of MacWord that she currently uses. It looks something like this: [3[eio2[r.
